Product details

This decorative serving board from our Balfern collection showcases the unique and natural characteristics of petrified wood, a fossilised kind from Indonesia that is more than 20 million years old. Further exploration has allowed us to discover a new white colourway to elevate the range. Each piece is individually cut, sanded and polished by skilled artisans in Indonesia, making every single one unique. The board adds an organic focal point to your dining table to reference the natural materials and textures seen throughout the spaces at Soho Roc House, Mykonos. Pair with our Balfern coasters for a complete set.
